

Nature's Protection

for the teeth. The enamel when once destroyed is never formed anew. And the body of the tooth thus exposed is liable to rapid decay.

Antiseptic tooth powder 20 cents a bottle.

ADAMS

DISPUTE OVER LAND.

Will Mauser Bros. Build Jenks & Mooney Here as Leases.

In Thursday's Transcript, we have seen concerning a 25 year lease which C. H. and Geo. Mauser had secured from John L. Barker of his lot on Park Street.

Thursday afternoon a sign "No trespassing" was placed on a part of the lot. It was put there by Paul Mooney of the firm of Jenks & Mooney and it remains one of the days when the small boy put a chip on his shoulder and said, "Who dare knock it off?"

Jenks & Mooney have a lease of a part of the Barker lot which was made some time ago and has been recorded. Mr. Barker signed the lease and it gives the firm that part of the lot from the corner of Dr. Rileys block, which is occupied by Jenks & Mooney.

Mauser Bros. are of the opinion that the above lease is no use but Mr. Mooney has told them to keep off the ground. A lawyer has been called by Jenks & Mooney's end of the situation and there is liable to be a case in court if Mauser Bros. attempt to do anything on the land leased by Jenks & Mooney.

COMMITTEES FOR FIELD DAY. A meeting of the committee of arrangements for the Adams Bicycle club's field day at Forest park, was held tomorrow afternoon.

BASEBALL TOMORROW. The Redwings and North Adams Y. M. C. A. baseball teams will cross bats in a friendly game at Forest park tomorrow.

CHILD BAPTIZED. Romulus, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Dolor Bourdon of the West road, was baptized today.

WILL BE A CANDIDATE. The following is taken from the editorial columns of the Adams Freeman: Mary friends of Lawyer William B. Mauser have requested him to allow the bearing of his name as the republican candidate for representative from the district and he has finally given his assent.

GUARDS FOR M'KINLEY.

How the President is Protected From Anarchists.

HIS EVERY STEP IS WATCHED.

Secret Service Men Are Near Him at All Hours, Aided by the Police and Detectives at the White House. Does Not Object to Surveillance.

In view of the recent arrival in the United States of some anarchists who came over from Naples for the purpose of killing President McKinley, it is of timely interest to know something of the measures taken for guarding the chief executive.

The safeguarding of the life of President McKinley from anarchists on the more feared class, cranks, is divided equally between the United States secret service and the local police department of Washington.

To reach the president while in Washington one must be known or have trustworthy credentials, and even then, says the New York World, every visitor and contact surveillance, and a menacing word would be instantly arrested by some of the attendants of the White House.

George E. Foster, one of the most trustworthy men in the secret service, is charged with guarding the life of the president at all times when he is not in the White House.

Mr. Foster, one of the most trustworthy men in the secret service, is charged with guarding the life of the president at all times when he is not in the White House.

Mr. Foster, one of the most trustworthy men in the secret service, is charged with guarding the life of the president at all times when he is not in the White House.

Mr. Foster, one of the most trustworthy men in the secret service, is charged with guarding the life of the president at all times when he is not in the White House.

Mr. Foster, one of the most trustworthy men in the secret service, is charged with guarding the life of the president at all times when he is not in the White House.

Mr. Foster, one of the most trustworthy men in the secret service, is charged with guarding the life of the president at all times when he is not in the White House.

Mr. Foster, one of the most trustworthy men in the secret service, is charged with guarding the life of the president at all times when he is not in the White House.

Mr. Foster, one of the most trustworthy men in the secret service, is charged with guarding the life of the president at all times when he is not in the White House.

WAYS OF THE FAKIR.

HE FREQUENTLY GETS HIS STOCK IN TRADE ON TRUST.

One Day His Pocketed Bulge With Cash on Another He is a Merchant—He is a Good Judge of "Toys" Selling Qualities.

The street fakir is a highly interesting character. His fortunes vary from the wind and his place of business is changeable. One day finds him in a Bowery eating house, his pockets bulging with dimes and nickels; the next, in line with a gang of the city's nondescript swarming his way at the entrance of a free soup house.

"Well, it's pretty hard to say," was the reply. "I have known hundreds of them and I have seen three or four who were doing for taking in now stock when he finds himself without money. Probably, however, I could best answer your question by relating my first experience with one of them."

"I was in the world does he get along? Where does he obtain a new stock of goods when he goes against him?" asked the reporter of a young investor who had had many dealings with the "profession."

"I walked briskly into my office, anticipating a shower of money from a client. I glanced nervously at the 1,000 neatly arranged boxes, each containing one of my toys, and feared that there would not be enough to fill the orders of my customers."

"I opened one of the boxes and exhibited my toy. It was a simple device, but it worked so well that I had, of course, bought it for one-half of the retail price. They seemed to like it."

"I have him five of the little boxes and tossed his overcoat in a corner. The man was evidently highly pleased with the toy. He bought some more and he bought five more with the money he had just received."

"After I had disposed of the box I placed in the first I had accepted, a faint smile broke on his good nature and a portable three legged stand, such as many fakirs use in exposing their wares for sale upon the street, the next man plied an overcoat similar in appearance to the first I had accepted."

"The fakir was negotiating with a man who left the three legged stand the other man had placed behind my back, secured the coat and pledged it to me for the second time. After this experience I saw each fakir alone and would him carefully."

"The fakir was negotiating with a man who left the three legged stand the other man had placed behind my back, secured the coat and pledged it to me for the second time. After this experience I saw each fakir alone and would him carefully."

"The fakir was negotiating with a man who left the three legged stand the other man had placed behind my back, secured the coat and pledged it to me for the second time. After this experience I saw each fakir alone and would him carefully."

"The fakir was negotiating with a man who left the three legged stand the other man had placed behind my back, secured the coat and pledged it to me for the second time. After this experience I saw each fakir alone and would him carefully."

GET THE KING'S CLOTHES.

Curious Paragraphs of a Noble Prince.

The recent collection of women's and men's clothes is said to be "used by the Duke of Bilbao, Count of Ribaldosa, in Madrid. From the year 1832 up to the present time the Count Ribaldosa has received every spring a present from the rulers of Spain the clothing worn by the sovereign in the day of the Empire."

The annual presentation of the gowns at the residence of the Ribaldosa was accompanied by curious ceremonies that have been in vogue ever since the first presentation in 1832. Enclosed by a regiment of cavalry in command of a colonel, a royal chamberlain sitting in a royal coach drawn by six full bred Andalusian horses proceeds to the Ribaldosa palace.

"The duke of the chamberlain sits a servant carrying on his knees a silver tray with the clothes of the day. Upon reaching the palace the chamberlain and the servant enter and deliver the garments to the count who, in humble words, expresses his thanks."

"The duke of the chamberlain sits a servant carrying on his knees a silver tray with the clothes of the day. Upon reaching the palace the chamberlain and the servant enter and deliver the garments to the count who, in humble words, expresses his thanks."

"The duke of the chamberlain sits a servant carrying on his knees a silver tray with the clothes of the day. Upon reaching the palace the chamberlain and the servant enter and deliver the garments to the count who, in humble words, expresses his thanks."

"The duke of the chamberlain sits a servant carrying on his knees a silver tray with the clothes of the day. Upon reaching the palace the chamberlain and the servant enter and deliver the garments to the count who, in humble words, expresses his thanks."

"The duke of the chamberlain sits a servant carrying on his knees a silver tray with the clothes of the day. Upon reaching the palace the chamberlain and the servant enter and deliver the garments to the count who, in humble words, expresses his thanks."

"The duke of the chamberlain sits a servant carrying on his knees a silver tray with the clothes of the day. Upon reaching the palace the chamberlain and the servant enter and deliver the garments to the count who, in humble words, expresses his thanks."

"The duke of the chamberlain sits a servant carrying on his knees a silver tray with the clothes of the day. Upon reaching the palace the chamberlain and the servant enter and deliver the garments to the count who, in humble words, expresses his thanks."

"The duke of the chamberlain sits a servant carrying on his knees a silver tray with the clothes of the day. Upon reaching the palace the chamberlain and the servant enter and deliver the garments to the count who, in humble words, expresses his thanks."

"The duke of the chamberlain sits a servant carrying on his knees a silver tray with the clothes of the day. Upon reaching the palace the chamberlain and the servant enter and deliver the garments to the count who, in humble words, expresses his thanks."

"The duke of the chamberlain sits a servant carrying on his knees a silver tray with the clothes of the day. Upon reaching the palace the chamberlain and the servant enter and deliver the garments to the count who, in humble words, expresses his thanks."

What makes the children feel so well? Read the answer in their Shredded Wheat.

DR. GEO. W. BRADLEY, EYE SPECIALIST. Nos. 24, 26, 28 Bank St., North Adams.

18th Annual Excursion to Saratoga. Under the auspices of the Baptist Sunday School. Saturday, August 25, 1900.

Tickets $1. Children 50 cents. Now is the time to visit this famous resort. The season is at its height, with its noted Mineral Springs, Congress Park, Indian Encampments, Beautiful Lake and other points of interest.

Boston Butter Co. 85 Main St., North Adams. Red Cross Coffee 30c pound.

CLOSING OUT SALE... $2000 worth of goods, consisting of Wall Paper, Paints, Varnish, Glass and Silverware, Lamps, Rugs, Patent Medicines, Hair, Tooth and Scrub Brushes, Carpet Sweepers, Etc.

The Time to Buy Summer Trousers is the present. We have an elegant lot of Summer Trousers, light weight, imported goods in beautiful patterns. Our stock is so large that to reduce it we will make you at this season at prices from $6.00 up.

P. J. Boland & Co., Boland Block—Tailors and Furnishers—Main Street. Bear in mind we are headquarters for Summer Neglige Shirts, Summer Neckwear, Etc. Exclusive styles and up to date.

NEWSPAPER ARCHIVE