SALT WATER AND SALT AIR
Corrosion.

"As far as I have used it I think it the best and finest oil on the market, where an oil is wanted for both delicate and heavy mechanism. If it treats smokeless powder the way it does black it is 'oil right.' We have to be very careful around the salt water, for salt air is very corrosive. I remain, Yours truly,

GRAND LODGE OFFICERS PRESENT.

Odd Fellows New Quarters Formally Dedicated—An Impressive Service Held.

The formal dedication of Hoosuck valley lodge of Odd Fellows' new quarters in the Mauser block on Park street, took place Tuesday evening and was an event that will not soon be forgotten by those who had the pleasure of witnessing the ceremony. There were about 250 people present, including the members of the lodge, their wives and friends, the members of Rebekah lodge and members of Oneco and Unitah lodges from North Adams.

The ceremony was in charge of the grand lodge officers and began when Grand Master William F. Dessecult of South Acton, Grand Warden Charles N. Bushell of New Bedford, Grand Secretary John U. Perkins of Chelsea, Grand Instructor William W. Webber of Boston, Grand Marshall W. A. Hastings of Malden ,Grand Guardian Napoleon B. Dana of Somerville, Grand Herald Edward F. Worcester of Hudson, Grand Conductor Sumner P. Lawrence of Fitchburg, Assistant Grand Secretary G. H. Fuller of Boston and Past Grand Master John Corkhill of Pittsfield, entered the lodge chamber. The service was according to the ritual and a feature was the erection of the altar of Odd Fellowship. The work was impressive and symbolical of the principles of the order. The officers did their work well and the ceremony passed off very smoothly.

At the conclusion of the dedicatory exercises Grand Master Dessecult made a speech, in which he outlined the work that Odd Fellows are doing and congratulated the local lodge on its excellent new quarters and the taste shown in the arrangement. He wished them success and paid a glowing tribute to their energy.

A banquet followed and refreshments were served by the members of Golden Link Rebekah lodge. A social hour was spent, then dancing was enjoyed until midnight in the large hall. Music was by the Adams Musical association.

A pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Morton at 138 Columbia street, Renfrew, at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The house was decorated and the parlor presented a very pretty appearance. It was decorated with palms, potted ferns and cut flowers

It was the marriage of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth M to Robert R. Pow. The ceremony was witnessed by relatives of the contracting parties and a few intimate friends. The couple entered the parlor while the wedding march was played by Miss Margaret and William Morton, sister and brother of the bride. It was a piano and violin duet.

Miss Agnes B. Morton, sister of the bride was bridesmaid and Andrew Pow, the groom's brother, was best man. The bride wore a traveling gown of blue ladies' cloth, trimmed with black satin ribbon and lace. The bridesmaid wore tan colored silk with pink trimmings. Rev. A. B. Pennlman performed the ceremony.

After the marriage a reception was held and the couple were extended congratulations. They received many beautiful presents consisting of cut glass, silverware, and household articles.

The bride is an estimable young woman and the groom is well known and highly respected by a large circle of friends. Both have the well wishes for a happy future.

After the wedding tour they will return and reside with the bride's parents. Later they intend to begin housekeeping by themselves.

ADAMS ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION ELECTS.

ANNUAL MEMORIAL EXERCISES HELD.

Each school in this town and East Cheshire observed its annual Memorial exercises in the respective school buildings this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. The decorations were very pretty and consisted of flowers and flags. Members of George R. Sayle post and associate members were present and delivered stirring addresses and helped to instill in the minds of the pupils the significance of the Memorial day observance. The pupils participated in the exercises and gave recitations and sang national anthems and hymns. Altogether the exercises were interesting and impressive.

SARAH WAS HARD TO SUIT.

A Story of Bernhardt and Several Brands of Sofas.

"When Bernhardt was in New Orleans," said an attache of the theater where the great Sarah played, "we had an awful time over the 'Camille' sofa. You remember, a sofa is used in the drawing room setting in 'Camille,' and, as the divan is one of her most effective posing on it, Mme. Bernhardt was determined it should be just so.

"We had several brands of sofa in stock, ranging from what they call a 'rude pallet' in melodrama to the gilded sofa of modern society plays, but she rejected the whole outfit at a glance and the prop. man hustled out for a fresh supply. He came back with a heaping wagon load. I never saw so many different kinds. There were straight backed sofas, humpbacked sofas, fat plush sofas, lean wicker sofas, horsehair sofas, bowlegged sofas, almost everything you could imagine, but nothing suited the madame. She passed them in review, condemned the lot and told the prop. man in sign talk to go and get some more. How he seared up another wagon load I don't know, but he did it somehow, and after they were all turned down, too, we were pretty nearly at our wit's end when we had an inspiration. We sent for a friend, an auctioneer, who has had long experience in handling costly furniture from private houses, and explained our dilemma. Could he help us out? Sure. He knew where to lay his hand on the exact sofa Mme. Bernhardt wanted. It was an heirloom, a wonderful sofa de luxe, covered with cloth of gold and cost $300 in Paris. He would borrow it. In half an hour it arrived, and it was certainly a stunner. We carried it in, satisfied that we had hit the nail on the head at last, and, to our delight, the madame proceeded to recline upon it. Then she made some remark in French to her dresser. 'What does she say?' asked the prop. man anxiously. 'She says it will do to sit on while you go after more,' replied the dresser.

"The visible supply of sofas was exhausted, and we told the madame as well as we could that she would have to give us time to explore the curio shops and other odd nooks and corners. She finally grasped what we were driving at, shrugged her shoulders ironically and went back to the hotel. As she entered her apartments she glanced around and saw a very modest, unpretentious sofa standing in one corner. 'Ah,' she said in French, 'the very thing. Send it to the theater.' In five minutes it was on the baggage elevator and that was the sofa we used in the play."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

KINDS OF SPIDERS.

Also Some Right Information About Tarantulas.

"There are very many kinds of spiders," says Harry Sutherland in Alaska's, "besides those that annoy the housewife with their webs stuck up in the corners of the rooms and in the windows when she has been too busy with the sewing to look after the house much, but every kind is an appetite on eight legs and thoroughly convinced that nobody can be strong and hearty that lives on vegetables. They all spin more or less, whence their name, which is a contraction of spinder, or splnner. Also, they bite, and if you listen to all the fool stories that are told when a spider bites you, you will save time by sending for the lawyer to make your will and telegraph for the boys to come home at once if they want to see you alive.

"But I will tell you, as between educated people that know a thing or two and do not get scared over every little trifle, that a spider's bite is no worse than a mosquito's—not so bad, in fact. A big spider can kill a small bird with its poison, but it only makes a man's arm swell up and hurt for a day or less, and not hurt very much at that. Bertken could not feel the ordinary domestic spider on the thick skin of his hand, and only between the fingers could the spider make a puncture like that of a dull pin. The worst result was that it itched a little. Blackwall had them draw blood, but that was all. Though one spider bit another so hard that its liver ran out, it lived for more than a year afterward.

"As for these terrible tarantulas, either the stories told about victims having to dance till they fell down in exhaustion in order to escape death and madness were tremendous whoppers or tarantulas don't bite as bad as they used to. It is true that in those days the Italian violinists had to work overtime composing tarantelles to play for the bitten, but still there were sneering skeptics that said it was all a scheme got up to pass the hat for the family and family of the suffering man whom a malignant spider had bitten while he was out looking for a job. Dafour had a tarantula that was quite tame and gentle. She took flies from his fingers like a dear thing. Almost any spider can be taught to take food from forceps and water from a camel's hair brush. They are great water drinkers, spiders are. I'll say that for 'em. Like the little temperance bird we used to read about, 'Water, cold water, is all of their song.' Rum and tobacco they turn from with loathing."

Sober as a Judge.

Judge Boyd, the English jurist, was so fond of brandy that he kept a supply of it in court upon his desk before him in an inkstand of peculiar make. His lordship used to lean his arm upon the desk, bob down his head and steal a hurried sip from time to time through a quill that lay among the pens, which manner he flattered himself escaped observation. At the Tralee assizes it was sought by counsel to convict a witness of having been intoxicated at the time to which his evidence referred. Harry Dean Grady with Daniel O'Connell labored hard to show the man had been sober.

"Come now, my good man," said Judge Boyd, "it is a very important consideration; tell the court truly, was the virtue of your oath, were you drunk or were you sober?"

"O, quite sober, my lord," broke in Grady, with a smile at O'Connell and a significant look at the inkstand. "He was as sober as a judge."

Growing Desire to Learn Spanish.

One evidence of the growing interest taken by the people of the United States in their new possessions is found in their recently discovered desire to learn the Spanish language, says the New York Sun. Within the last year Spanish has made great advances in the colleges and universities. In the high schools of the larger cities also it is making its way and threatening to outstrip French and German. Yale university is a case in point. For many years Spanish had been neglected, but already more than 100 students have announced that they wish to take it next year.

When Well-Known North Adams and Adams People Tell It So Plainly

When public endorsement is made by a representative citizen of Adams the proof is positive. You must believe it. Read this testimony. Every backache sufferer, every man, woman or child with any kidney trouble will find profit in the reading

Miss Minnie Moore of No. 26 Bellview avenue, Adams, says—"I had a lame back and an almost constant aching over my kidneys. Sometimes after a busy day's work my back ached so I felt like giving up. I suffered very severely on getting up in the morning. I read a good deal about Doan's Kidney Pills curing such trouble and I had noticed them endorsed by people here at home, so I got a box of them and took them as directed. It was only a short time until I felt a change for the better. I kept on with the treatment until completely cured."
